BEN NELSON
Nexus Group, Canada

Ben was born and raised in a small Southwest Saskatchewan town called Shaunavon where he learned at an early age that politeness and teamwork plays a major part in becoming successful. He was surrounded by a construction oriented family dating back to his Scandinavian and German roots. He excelled in high school sports and continued on to play College Football in Regina, SK where he again found that teamwork goes a long way. After attending Paramedic school in Regina, Ben moved to Red Deer, Alberta, Canada where he began his construction career. Ben worked for a major residential developer for several years before returning back to his home province of Saskatchewan to continue furthering his construction knowledge in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan to gain experience in large-scale commercial construction. In 2008 Ben lived in Florida for 12 months to explore the construction industry and several other avenues before taking a 4 month excursion overseas to Norway to experience the European construction industry firsthand and develop his customer relations aspect of the job. After 4 months, he returned to Regina, SK to put his knowledge and customer appreciation to work. He did this by beginning project management for a large-scale residential renovation company while also operating his own construction company at the same time. While expanding his own business and enjoying direct involvement with all customers, he joined forces with 3 more local businessmen to develop one of the most respectful, community involved, honest renovation companies on the Canadian Prairies. The result is Nexus Group, which has 2 divisions so far, Bathrooms by Nexus, and Basements by Nexus, with more divisions to come. Ben is a Partner and the General Manager with all of the construction experience to push this company in the right direction for success. In 2012 he was nominated for a Paragon Business Award for "Young Entrepreneur of the Year" by the Regina Chamber of Commerce. Ben believes in integrity, honesty, and quality and is extremely thankful for the opportunity to represent the Kitchen and Bath industry of Saskatchewan, Canada.

BRANDY HANEY
Hansgrohe, Alpharetta, GA

A self-starter with a drive to succeed, Brandy L. Haney has been a Hansgrohe employee since July 2011—just two months after graduating from North Georgia College & State University, where she received a marketing degree. Only five months after joining the company she was promoted from Inside Sales Specialist to her current role of Inside Account Manager. In this position, she handles three of Hansgrohe's major accounts, adeptly working with them to garner excellent results. Assisting with product forecasting and training are also a few of her many responsibilities at the company. With an appreciation for design and a desire to learn, Brandy enjoys attending local networking events. She is also inspired by her colleagues who specialize in K&B product trend and industry education and is interested in exploring that specialty. A recipient of the prestigious HOPE academic scholarship and a regular on the President's, Dean's, and Merit lists, Brandy has been a high achiever from the very start. She would like to continue to leverage her industriousness and skills in marketing, communications and business, as well as expand her areas of expertise in the years to come.

As one of the founders of Vancouver General Contractors, Fares Elsabbagh is a very dedicated and passionate person who leads a team of young energetic individuals in the fast paced and high pressure, design & build industry. Vancouver General Contractors is part of Canada General Contractors Group, the only national design & build firm in Canada with branch offices in Ottawa, Toronto, Vancouver and (this Fall) Calgary. He is the President of Business Development for the CGC Group and, undoubtedly, the driving force behind the "Action by Teamwork" motto held by what has become one of Canada's fastest growing construction companies. A natural leader, Fares, is known for being an inspiration to his team. He leads and motivates by example yet is approachable and personable to all his team members. Fares balances his fast paced career with community involvement as an active member of the Greater Vancouver Home Builders Association and the Vancouver Urban Rec Soccer League. Leading one of British Columbia's most innovative construction companies is not an easy task but Fares has shown the extra ordinary skills that have made Vancouver General Contractors the top design & build firm in the Province.

GREG BUITRAGO JR.
Hammer Contractors, Inc. Olney, MD

Greg Buitrago Jr. has been active in the remodeling industry since 2002. Literally starting from the ground up, he began his career digging foundations and framing additions for his father's contracting company in Maryland, later moving to finish carpentry and site supervision. In 2006, Greg stepped out of his studies at the University of Maryland to take over the family business full time, due to a life-changing motorcycle accident involving his father. In the years after, the company has seen many blessings and growth, including the evolution into a true, turnkey, design and build firm, along with partnering with another local firm to form Hammer Contractors: Design-Build. Greg continues today leading his company, along with co-owner Jorge Castellanos, and now serves as the firm's director of sales and design, assisting their clientele in "loving their remodel" -- from their first meeting with the Hammer team, through completion, and for years to come. Greg is passionate about delivering a professional remodeling experience built on excellence and integrity for all his clients, shareholders, and employees.

At 29, Kelly brings a fresh youthful approach to the design process and to the business.

LUCAS LIU
Design Element, Rancho Cucamong, CA

Like many students in 2005, Lucas Liu began the arduous task of finding work while in college. With little experience and years away from an International Business degree from Cal State Fullerton, employment that aligned with his field of study made the most sense. Liu began searching for companies to interview with. Before each meeting he would research the company, their product and business model. His hope was that his knowledge about the company and their products would give him an edge and a job. While weeks of interviews landed no job, Liu began to understand more about the process of importing and selling product online. While researching for another interview, he clicked on an online ad to re-sell products - bathroom vanities; the idea for Design Element was born that day. That first order of vanities shipped from a garage in 2005. Design Element products are now sold through more than 40 retailers including Homedepot and Sears, has grown into a 70,000 square foot facility with $6 Million in revenue for 2012. With successful exhibition at both the KBIS 2011, 2012 and the IBS in 2013, Liu has an eye on the future researching sustainable materials, and working with contractors and builders on large scale projects. The key to success for Design Element, According to Liu, has been innovative design, a focus on quality and adaptability to market conditions.

MEGAN JANSKY
Luxury Baths & Kitchens, Glendale Heights, IL

Immersing herself in Luxury Bath from the onset in October of 2010, Megan soon realized that her 7 years of experience in merchandising and marketing with Fortune 500 companies such as Microsoft and Walgreens gave her the experience necessary to reposition Luxury Bath as the leader in the one day acrylic bath remodeling industry. Assuming a myriad of responsibilities, including enhancing a consumer marketing platform, developing advanced web-based strategies and coordinating dealer development, Megan strives to deliver unsurpassed excellence to the Luxury Bath dealer network. Megan spends countless hours considering how mainstream media combines with web-based lead generation to better fit the ever-changing consumer landscape. Having her curiosity piqued while attending Purdue University, Megan consistently strives to pursue her passion, which is listening to and understanding the consumer. Her mantra is her job is easy, "consumers tell us what they want--we just need to listen." In the hours that Megan is able to escape the office she enjoys relaxing with her husband Trevor, and joining the greatest fans in America cheering on over 100 years of futility--better known as the Chicago Cubs! Megan is thrilled to be chosen to represent the Kitchen and Bath Industry's top 30 professionals under 30 and looks forward to meeting many of her peers at KBIS.
